Have you lost someone you love? If so, you can find hope and encouragement in Cozmo's little book series on How to have an invisible beloved one. Cozmo was only 10 when he lost his best friend and beloved brother, Kenzo, who died after 6 months of incurable cancer, only 7 years young. "Now we have to find another way of being a family" said Cozmo, as he left the hospital in the morning of June 12, 2012, leaving his brother's dead body behind. A few days later, he showed us how, by drawing the little, but powerful book, How to have an invisible brother.

The book became the new frame for his family: we had not only lost someone we love.

We had also received: an invisible son and brother. Since then, Cozmo encountered others who were grieving, and he created the book in many versions. If you want to order a particular version, that you don't find here, you can write him your wish at : cozmo@davidcozmo.com.
